Bharath has over 10 years of experience in the network security space. He previously designed the application firewall and intrusion prevention components of the next-generation security product at Huawei-Symantec. He holds a Masters in Network Security from Washington University in St. Louis.

While he has spent a decade in the network security space industry, Bharath believes that EdTech can be made more effective if paired with parental involvement and engagement.

When he is not in Securly's Silicon Valley HQ, Bharath loves to travel (recent destinations include Aleppo and the Amazon) and learning new languages (intermediate Mandarin).
